

you're in — welcome.

grow with joy round 2 kicks off september 14, and I'm so glad you're here. before we dive in, here are a couple of things to get you started.

this isn't the curriculum — it's a head start. 2 tasks, both genuinely doable before day 1. the first gives you a baseline so we're not guessing when we start building. the second is a warm-up. that's it. nothing to prepare beyond this.

TASK 01

diagnose your account

your profile is a house, and every post does one of three jobs. most people overbuild the first and starve the other two — and that's usually why a post can go viral and gain you almost nobody. you can't fix the gap until you can see it.

REACH

the front door

how strangers find you — recipe reels, compilations, trending formats.

THE FOLLOW

the entry way

anything that says who you are and why someone would stick around.

ENGAGEMENT

the living room

personality content for the people already there.

FIRST, PULL YOUR DATA — META BUSINESS SUITE EXPORT

- 01 go to business.facebook.com on desktop (not mobile).
- 02 left sidebar → Content, then Export Data at the top.
- 03 select Instagram, pick your account, set the range to last 90 days.
- 04 choose a report type (one at a time): Posts, then Stories. click Generate, then Download.
- 05 choose CSV if you can, and save both files somewhere you'll find them.

TWO THINGS THAT TRIP PEOPLE UP

up by Export Data there's a little number — that's how many exports you've run. generating only pulls the data into your browser; it doesn't land on your computer until you open that drop-down and click Download. and let each export finish before you start the next. if it stops short of 90 days, that's just how far back meta lets you go.

DO THE THING

audit your last 9 posts by room

1. pull your last 90 days of Meta data using the steps above.
2. look at your last 9 posts and label each one: front door, entry way, or living room.
3. count them up. whichever room is emptiest is your gap — bring that number to day 1.

TASK 02

rewrite one flat hook

the hook decides whether anyone sees the rest — it's the single biggest lever you have. and the most common mistake is the easiest to fix: leading with the recipe name instead of a number, an opinion, a scenario, or a curiosity gap. "easy" and "delicious" are not hooks.

THE 5 ANGLES TO PULL FROM

relatable

a feeling your person recognizes instantly.

helpful

a clear, useful promise.

curiosity

open a loop they need closed.

series

"day 4 of..." keeps people coming back.

shocking

a claim that stops the scroll.

WHAT IT LOOKS LIKE

"easy overnight oats" → "these overnight oats have 32g of protein and zero protein powder" · "easy cottage cheese dip" → "you're using cottage cheese wrong" — notice neither one is the recipe name. the food still shows up, it just shows up after you've given someone a reason to be there.

DO THE THING

pick one flat hook and fix it

1. find a post of yours that led with the recipe name.
2. rewrite the hook using one of the 5 angles — a number, an opinion, a scenario, or a gap.
3. that's it. don't repost it yet — just write it down and bring it with you.

BONUS

start your clips folder

30 seconds of setup that pays off all month. low-production real-life clips — an errand, a snack, a family moment — often travel further than recipe content because they aren't niche-limited.

IF YOU HAVE 30 SECONDS

OPTIONAL · make the folder, then feed it make one album in your phone called clips. every time you catch something ordinary — the grocery run, the snack, the kid moment — drop it in. you'll never open day 1 with nothing to work with.

see you september 14

that's everything. if you only get to task 01, you're in good shape — the audit is the one that changes what we can do together on day 1.

nothing here has to be perfect, and nothing here is a test. come as you are, with whatever you got done.
